The Property

CLOSE X

Hidden on one of Notting Hill's quieter residential streets, this beautifully presented cottage unfolds across two floors, balancing character with a calm, contemporary interior.

The house opens into a welcoming reception room, where timber flooring, generous natural light and a simple palette create an immediate sense of warmth. The staircase rises naturally through the space, gently separating the sitting room from the dining area beyond while maintaining an easy flow between the two.

Indoor Spaces

CLOSE X

At the rear of the house, the dining room feels particularly inviting, with bespoke shelving and integrated wine storage lending both character and practicality. Beyond, the kitchen is cleanly detailed and quietly functional, with contemporary cabinetry and a large window overlooking Bridstow Place, drawing light deep into the house throughout the day.

The Bedrooms

CLOSE X

Upstairs, two bedrooms sit either side of the bathroom. The principal bedroom enjoys a peaceful outlook towards mature trees, while the second bedroom adapts easily as a guest room, study or nursery. The bathroom is understated and filled with natural light, complementing the calm feel that runs throughout the house.

The interiors are quietly confident rather than overtly designed. Timber flooring, bespoke joinery and carefully integrated storage create a sense of continuity, while the restrained palette allows the cottage's proportions and natural light to take centre stage.

Outdoor Spaces

CLOSE X

A private first-floor terrace extends the living space outdoors. Framed by painted brick walls and softened by surrounding greenery, it offers a secluded setting for a morning coffee, a quiet afternoon with a book or dinner on a summer evening.

The Neighbourhood CLOSE

Bridstow Place is one of those streets that many pass without ever noticing. Peaceful and discreet, it sits between Chepstow Road and Talbot Road, moments from the independent shops, cafés and restaurants of Westbourne Grove and a short walk from Portobello Road. Kensington Gardens and Hyde Park are both within easy reach, while Royal Oak, Westbourne Park and Notting Hill Gate stations provide excellent connections across London.
